for the Senate

JEFFERSON CITY, May 17.—As the senate prepared to tackle the 2 per cent sales tax bill this afternoon, indications were most of the "fireworks" would be over details rather than over doubling the present 1 per cent rate.

A proposed rebate of 3 per cent of collections to merchants, and exemptions of freight transportation, advertising, and laundry and dry cleaning services are the chief changes made in the old law, aside from the major one of rate. These provisions were not in the bill as passed by the house.

Another change made in the senate ways and means committee was fixing of May 31, 1939, as expiration date of the 2 per cent law. The house passed it as a permanent revenue measure.

Expected to bring the 1937-38 sales tax revenue to 42 million dollars, the act carries an emergency clause and would go into effect as soon as signed by the governor. The 2 per cent rate is expected to raise approximately 2 million dollars a month.

With the old rate in effect during the first half of 1937, officials have figured 18 millions would be raised from sales tax sources this year, and 24 millions in 1938.

Granting of the 3 per cent rebate to merchants who pay the tax promptly—as proposed by the senate committee—would reduce the state's "net" by approximately 14 million dollars in the current biennium, and other proposed new exemptions would add to that figure.

Last session nearly a month was required before the one per cent law finally went through the senate as a compromise between the 2 per cent desired by the house and retention of the old one-half of one per cent law, wanted by a senate group.

This time even those most opposed to the sales tax say the protest against it has been much less than expected. Committees have shown little interest in proposals to substitute hikes in other taxes for the sales measure, so that it is the only means of support for the social security program which has reached the floor in either branch of the assembly.

House Works on Pension Bill

While the senate is wrestling with this "key" measure house members will work on the Casey old age pension-child welfare-reform bill, centralizing this work under one new commission.

Disposal of the sales tax problem will be the "go ahead" signal for the senate appropriations committee to complete the hardest task of the legislature—slashing requests for funds to meet the supply.

All but three of the departments and institutions getting money from general revenue have asked an increase, Chairman J. S. Rollins has said, but the social security program will account for nearly all the "new" money available.

The committee has before it the question of school fund allocation, and may reduce it slightly from the 33 per cent given for many years, but probably not to the minimum of 25 per cent specified by the constitution. A reduction of 3 per cent would release about $2,400,000 for other purposes and still give the schools more money than before, it has been said.

Unemployment compensation tops the senate calendar after the sales tax has been disposed of.

The house has before it the Casey bill, proposed centralization of executions at the state prison, the senate-amended county treasurer and prison guard bills, and proposed reduction of pleasure car license fees by half.

BURNED SEVERELY

Mrs. Margaret Lewis Injured Sunday When Can Exploded

Mrs. Margaret Lewis, wife of Orval C. Lewis, 113 South Grand avenue, received painful and serious burns about her body and arms about 7:45 o'clock Sunday morning, when an oil can from which she was pouring oil on a fire, exploded. Mr. Lewis received burns on his arms and his hair was singed when he tore his wife's burning clothing from her body.

Mrs. Lewis had gone into the kitchen and was preparing to build a fire and start breakfast. She had started the fire and then took the large can of oil into her arms and started to pour the oil on the fire and before she could drop the can it exploded throwing oil over the entire room.

Mr. Lewis was lying across a bed in an adjoining room and hearing the explosion ran into the kitchen and began tearing the clothing from his wife, rushed her to his mother's home, Mrs. Minnie Lewis at 115 South Grand avenue, returned and grabbed their small daughter Betty Joan Lewis tossing her out a window. Leroy Laughlin, son of Mrs. Lewis was awake and in fighting the fire received slight burns on his hands.

Upon the arrival of the fire companies and learning of the woman being burned Chief John C. Lucke for the first time had an opportunity to use the first aid kit on the fire truck in treating a burned person.

While other firemen fought the fire, Chief Lucke with fireman L. "Dutch" Gordy obtained the equipment and began to spray a solution of Hexyton on Mrs. Lewis. The solution a mixture of hexylene, sorcinol, tannic acid and glycerine, gave almost immediate relief to Mrs. Lewis. The solution forms a coating over the burns sealing them from the air. Two spraying treatments were used.

Mrs. Lewis was burned about her left breast, her face, arms and hands. According to Dr. A. E. Monroe and Mr. Charles McNeil, who treated Mrs. Lewis, the burns were of a second degree nature, and although painful and serious they are not considered critical.

The new first-aid equipment was placed in service last October 4, 1936, and although several minor cases of burns have been treated by the firemen, the burns of Mrs. Lewis were the first treated with the spray gun. It was said by the firemen, had they not given this treatment the patient would have suffered intense pain under the old time treatment of other fire burn remedies. When used, the Hexyton treatment gives almost immediate relief.

Fire damage to the residence and furnishings amounted to several hundred dollars. Insurance was carried to cover part of the loss.

NO DECISION BY HIGH COURT ON SECURITY ACT

Uphold Bar of Refund of Processing and Floor
Stock Taxes

CHAIN STORES TAX IS HELD VALID

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 17.—The supreme court failed today to pass on the constitutionality of the federal chain store security act.

Before adjourning until next Monday it announced opinions in nine cases. The social security decision will be delivered either next Monday or on Tuesday June 1 when the court adjourns for the summer.

The major decision today upheld provisions of the 1936 revenue act barring refund of $936,000,000 of processing and floor stock taxes collected under the invalidated agricultural adjustment act unless the taxpayer proved that he bore the cost himself.

Another decision held constitutional a 1934 Louisiana statute imposing a graduated license tax on chain stores, based on the number of units operated throughout the state and elsewhere.

Nineteen decisions remain for delivery during the next two opinion sessions.

Chief Justice Hughes, delivering the 8 to 1 opinion, in the processing tax case, said:

"We conclude that the authorized procedure provides for a full and fair hearing and determination of all matters of fact and that through judicial review, it provides for the protection of all the legal rights of the petitioner including any constitutional right which it may be entitled to invoke with respect to the refund which it seeks."

"The petitioner may thus obtain through this proceeding whatever judgment its case warrants, a judgment which the government, by virtue of the requirement that the commissioner (of internal revenue) shall make refund accordingly, binds itself to pay."

Administration officials engaged in attempting to balance the budget expressed gratification at the court's decision.

It was delivered on litigation by the Aniston Manufacturing Company of Alabama seeking to recover $269,854 paid as taxes under the agricultural adjustment act.

A major requirement of the 1936 revenue act was that all taxpayers in order to obtain a refund prove that they had not passed the cost of the levy to the consumer or anyone else but bore it themselves.

Justice McReynolds dissented but wrote no opinion.

Upholds Chain Store Tax

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The Supreme Court held constitutional today a 1934 Louisiana statute imposing a graduated license tax on chain stores based on the number of units operated throughout the nation and elsewhere.

A ruling by a three-judge federal district court at New Orleans sustaining the levy was affirmed. Justice Roberts delivered the 4 to 3 decision. Justices Sutherland, McReynolds and Butler dissented. Justices Vandeventer and Stone did not participate in the decision.

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company and 12 other corporations attacked the law which levied taxes from $10 to $55 per store.

Because it had 15,094 establishments throughout the nation and in Canada, the A. and P. company said it was taxed $550 for each of its 106 stores in Louisiana. It added that one of its competitors, H. G. Hill stores, Inc., which operates 87 stores in New Orleans, has to pay only $30 per store.

The A and P. contends that if the act were upheld "the era of the national chain is over" and "it may perhaps also be said that the era of national corporations and of firms or individuals doing business in more than one state is over." It asserted that sustaining the levy would "open the door to the application of a similar theory to franchise, income and other taxes."

Roberts asserted that "the policy Louisiana is free to adopt with respect to the business activities of her own citizens she may apply to the citizens of other states who conduct the same business within her borders, and this irrespective of whether the evils requiring regulation arise solely from operations in Louisiana or are in part the result of extra-state transactions."

GUILTY PLEA IN VOTE FRAUD CASE

By The Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, May 17.—The first guilty plea in the federal government's drive on alleged vote fraud conspiracy here marked the opening of the seventh vote fraud trial here today.

The plea, entered by George Arnold, Democratic judge in the seventh precinct of the twelfth ward, was accepted by Judge Albert L. Reeves and sentence deferred until completion of the trial of the other four defendants from the same precinct.

Eight persons have pleaded no defense and thrown themselves on the mercy of the court in previous trials, but Arnold's was the first guilty plea. Thirty-two persons have been convicted and a jury disagreed in the case of three in earlier trials. A federal grand jury was dismissed after indicting 126 on the vote fraud charges, and a second grand jury, called to continue the investigation of the Nov. 3 general election, recessed last week after three days of investigation.

Those facing trial today are Gene Riley, Democratic judge; Mrs. Irene Ervin, Republican clerk; Robert Strohm, Democratic precinct captain, and Thomas Audley, Democratic inside challenger.

The way was cleared for the selection of a jury panel when Judge Reeves overruled a defense motion to quash the indictment and a defense demurrer.

ARGUE APPEALS ON INSURANCE FEES

By The Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, May 17.—Arguments on appeals from allowance of fees to H. P. Lauf and L. H. Cook, commissioners and custodians, and Gilbert Lamb, counsel, in the 10 per cent fire insurance restitution case were heard today by the state supreme court.

Attorney General Roy McKittick led the opposition to the awarding by Circuit Judge Nike G. Sevier of Cole County of about $18,000 each to Lauf and Cook, and $26,000 to Lamb. All three are Jefferson City attorneys.

Lauf and Cook, the attorney general held, performed duties which referees would perform, and said that under the statutes they would have been entitled to a maximum of $10 a day when actually at work. The fees were granted, he asserted, for 13 months work.

McKittick further contended, however, that Judge Sevier was without authority to name the commissioners and custodians. The insurance department, he told the court, was the proper party to prosecute the restitution suit.

A considerable part of the 3-hour hearing was devoted to a recital of incidents since the case had its inception in 1922.

Decision in the cases will be handed down by the court later. Both sides were granted time to reply to briefs. During the hearing, both sides accused the other of distorting facts.

Lauf, who spoke for himself and Cook, said the two had performed all the duties given them by the circuit court.

Several Other Compromise
Plans Likely to be Rejected

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Senator Logan (D-KY) predicted today the senate judiciary committee considering the Roosevelt court bill would reach an agreement tomorrow on a plan for appointment of one justice a year.

Logan, a supporter of the Roosevelt measure, said he would propose a substitute changing the retirement age to 75, and felt confident it would be reported favorably along with a limitation on new appointments to one a year.

In view of the committee lineup against the Roosevelt plan for the addition of as many as six new justices to the high court, Logan said he favored his compromise "over the president's proposal."

Several other compromises will be offered to the committee tomorrow by Logan. He said, however, he believed they would be rejected.

Under one of the compromises—the McCarran proposal—calling for a permanent increase in the size of the supreme court to 11 members, there would be added a provision for appointment of additional temporary justices for each member of the court over 75 years of age.

Under a variation of the McCarran plan, there would be a further modification limiting the appointment of these temporary justices to one a year, and delaying the appointment of them until 1939.

If these proposals should be defeated, Logan said, he would offer a complete new substitute for the President's plan.

Limit on Appointments
It would fix a permanent court of nine members, but permit temporary appointments for each member past 75 years of age.

Logan said a proposal would be made to limit these temporary appointments to one a year and there would be enough votes to report it favorably in this form.

Chairman Ashurst (D-Ariz), who has always insisted on "clean victory or clean defeat," still held his ground. He said he would stand for the bill in its original form, providing for a six new justices unless those over 70 years retired.

On the other hand, Logan said he felt supporters of the bill would agree to the proposition that "half a loaf is better than no loaf," and that a compromise would prevail.

Senators opposing the Roosevelt bill called a conference on strategy today to decide whether to reject all modification proposals or attempt to work out some alternative program.

Their meeting nearly coincided with a session of the senate judiciary committee—the last before it votes tomorrow on the controversial measure. A majority of that group is against the bill.

Leaders of the foes were more interested in supreme court proceedings, however, than in the final committee debate. They watched for a possible decision on the constitutionality of the social security act.

A decision against the government, they said, might gain support for the President's bill.

Unconfirmed reports of impending retirements from the supreme court also interested both sides. Some observers held the opinion that justices generally labeled as conservatives could not leave the bench without appearing to withdraw under fire. Others expressed the belief that a ruling in favor of the social security act might convince them their views had no chance of prevailing in the court.

SYMPHONY ENDS SEASON WITH A FINE CONCERT

A fine concert was presented to the public Sunday afternoon at Smith-Cotton high school by the Sedalia Symphony orchestra. Mr. Rosenthal had prepared a program of popular classics, worthy musically, and well known and well-loved by audiences everywhere.

The program opened with the Pilgrims Chorus from Tannhauser by Wagner. The hymn-like air is known to all from school days, and was well received. Next the orchestra played the first Movement of Schubert's Unfinished Symphony containing the familiar melody used by Sigmund Romberg in his Song of Love Waltz from the opera The Blossom Time. The program continued with the spirited Hall of the Mountain King from the Peer Gynt Suite by Grieg, the weird melody given out by woodwinds and brass and accompanied by pizzicato strings. This is a number well loved by children and by grown-ups as well.

The concert continued without an intermission, the orchestra next playing gay selections from Victor Herbert's Sweethearts. The next offering was a group of three numbers, the familiar Londonderry Air, Paderewski's stately Minuet, and the colorful gypsy number, Two Guitars by Horlick.

Before the last number, Mr. Rosenthal, the conductor, thanked the orchestra for its fine cooperation and fine musicianship and the orchestra rose to take a bow.

The program closed with the Coronation March from Meyerbeer's opera The Prophet. At the close of the concert Mr. Rosenthal was recalled to the platform again and again in response to appreciative applause.

The afternoon was much enjoyed by the large group who attended, and it is hoped that these popular concerts will be made a regular annual event in the orchestra's schedule.

IMPRESSON GAS CELL CAUSED BLAST

LAKEHURST, N. J., May 17.—One of the Hindenburg's riggers, who was on duty close to the spot where the destructive flames first burst forth from her stern, gave the department of commerce investigating board today his opinion that a gas cell started the disaster.

Hans Freund, the only one of the dirigible's three riggers to survive, was the first witness yet called who was able to give any account of what took place in the stern when the fire and explosion occurred.

He had reached a station near the fins, he related, and was attempting to pay out a steel landing cable, when it happened.

"There was a muffled detonation and I was standing in fire," he related. "It went so quickly."

"I had the impression it was a gas cell," he added after saying he could not tell whether the flames enveloping him came from the forward or after direction.

Freund said he was one of the three men who inspected the dirigible's gas cells, but the other two perished in the disaster. He could not supply information on the gas level of the last cell in the stern at the trip's end, for he did not have the final watch on that duty.

It would fix a permanent court of nine members, but permit temporary appointments for each member past 75 years of age.

Logan said a proposal would be made to limit these temporary appointments to one a year and there would be enough votes to report it favorably in this form.

Chairman Ashurst (D-Ariz), who has always insisted on "clean victory or clean defeat," still held his ground. He said he would stand for the bill in its original form, providing for a six new justices unless those over 70 years retired.

On the other hand, Logan said he felt supporters of the bill would agree to the proposition that "half a loaf is better than no loaf," and that a compromise would prevail.

Senators opposing the Roosevelt bill called a conference on strategy today to decide whether to reject all modification proposals or attempt to work out some alternative program.

Their meeting nearly coincided with a session of the senate judiciary committee—the last before it votes tomorrow on the controversial measure. A majority of that group is against the bill.

Leaders of the foes were more interested in supreme court proceedings, however, than in the final committee debate. They watched for a possible decision on the constitutionality of the social security act.

A decision against the government, they said, might gain support for the President's bill.

Unconfirmed reports of impending retirements from the supreme court also interested both sides. Some observers held the opinion that justices generally labeled as conservatives could not leave the bench without appearing to withdraw under fire. Others expressed the belief that a ruling in favor of the social security act might convince them their views had no chance of prevailing in the court.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Senator Logan (D-KY) predicted today the senate judiciary committee considering the Roosevelt court bill would reach an agreement tomorrow on a plan for appointment of one justice a year.

Logan, a supporter of the Roosevelt measure, said he would propose a substitute changing the retirement age to 75, and felt confident it would be reported favorably along with a limitation on new appointments to one a year.

In view of the committee lineup against the Roosevelt plan for the addition of as many as six new justices to the high court, Logan said he favored his compromise "over the president's proposal."

Several other compromises will be offered to the committee tomorrow by Logan. He said, however, he believed they would be rejected.

Under one of the compromises—the McCarran proposal—calling for a permanent increase in the size of the supreme court to 11 members, there would be added a provision for appointment of additional temporary justices for each member of the court over 75 years of age.

Under a variation of the McCarran plan, there would be a further modification limiting the appointment of these temporary justices to one a year, and delaying the appointment of them until 1939.

If these proposals should be defeated, Logan said, he would offer a complete new substitute for the President's plan.

OLD AGE ROUTS SCIENTISTS

Old age has put present-day scientists to rout, according to statisticians of a leading life insurance company. They say that no method as yet has been evolved by which the span of life can be materially increased, through extending the outstanding improvement in mortality attained during the past twenty years to include the group of persons past 75. They base their conclusions on the reduction in mortality effected since 1916 among the insurance company's industrial policyholders who number in the millions. While this decline has been "remarkable", it has not been shared equally by all groups, for the improvement ranges from 75 per cent for young children to less than 5 per cent for the group past 75 years of age.

"There are two factors responsible for this," the statisticians say. "First, certain diseases which were formerly common among children have been practically eliminated, whereas in the control of the degenerative conditions characteristic of later life there has been little progress. Second, death is inevitable. Those who do not succumb to acute disease or to external causes must sooner or later die from bodily deterioration.

"And the span of life—that is, the extreme limit of human longevity—seems to be essentially fixed, not amenable to prolongation by any means known to present-day science."

The decline of 75 per cent in the death rate among children, ages 1 to 4, was accomplished, the statisticians explain, because medical science and practice succeeded in dealing with the diseases peculiar to this period of life, such as diarrhea and enteritis and the communicable diseases of childhood, while mortality from tuberculosis, pneumonia and accidents—all common as causes of death among children—also showed outstanding improvement during the period. Deaths from diarrhea and enteritis were reduced by 90 per cent in the past 20 years, the death rate in 1916 having been 213.1 per 100,000 as compared with 21.3 in 1936. The diphtheria death rate dropped during the same period from 128.4 to 10.3, while the rate for measles declined from 89.9 to 6.2. The tuberculosis death rate among these children in 1936 was less than one-fourth of that in 1916, while the rate for pneumonia was less than one-third and the accident rate about one-half.

During the safest years of life—ages 5 to 15—the mortality improvement has amounted to approximately 50 per cent since 1916, due in large part to an 80 per cent drop in deaths from tuberculosis. The age group—15 to 35—also experienced a 50 per cent improvement in mortality, with the greatest decline in the death rate—75 per cent—shown in tuberculosis, while puerperal causes came next with a drop of about 55 per cent. Tuberculosis, however, is still the chief cause of death among that group.

While a sizeable decline in the death rate occurred among the group 35 to 55, during those years the disease of old age began to put in their appearance, and cancer, diabetes and the degenerative diseases are important causes of death.

From age 55 to 75, the mortality has declined less than 20 per cent in the 20 years since 1916. At this time of life, heart disease ranks as the first cause of death, and is responsible for over one quarter of all deaths. Cancer, cerebral hemorrhage, chronic nephritis, and pneumonia also rank high.

"But beyond age 75," the statisticians state, "there has been less than a 5 per cent decline in the death rate since 1916. The mortality from cancer, heart disease, and accidents has actually increased during the period—1916-1936. There have been drops, however, in the death rate from influenza, pneumonia, cerebral hemorrhage and chronic nephritis. But there is, of course, little chance of any considerable improvement in the mortality in late life where the degenerative diseases predominate."

LONDON AND ITS TREES

London protects its trees. In building temporary stands at Westminster abbey for the coronation spectators, trees were untouched. They interfered somewhat with the view from the seats, but they held their own. No boughs were destroyed in order to yield more seats. In these stands space was at a premium. There was intense competition for them. The space occupied by trees was probably coveted by many, but the trees were preserved. Stands can be erected in short order, but trees are years in the growing.

If and when in London it is necessary to remove trees, young trees are transplanted immediately in all the areas where is space for trees to eat and breathe. London intends to have as many trees as it can and the temporary convenience of Londoners and their guests is never permitted to interfere with the standing trees, for they decorate streets and parkways as man's substitutes never can. The most ornate kiosk does not add to a street's appearance as a tree does.

Perhaps the chief trouble in this section is that trees grow rapidly and are many. Nature is prodigal with seedlings. They spring up and grow steadily if they are given a chance. If trees in this section were relatively scarce, there would be much greater protection for them. They would not be felled because somebody says they keep sun off the streets or yards. There is plenty of available farming land in this area without uprooting trees, which are windbreak and shade supplier.

If in this section trees were in an area where stands were to be built, instead of erecting stands around them, the builders would destroy the trees. It has been done and it will be done again unless tree friends are eternally on guard. Many fine trees in Sedalia have been spared in late years because friends have sprung to their protection. Many have fallen because friends were too late.

CANAL TRAFFIC

From New York Sun.

In March of this year more commercial vessels of 300 or over net tons, Panama Canal measurement, used the canal than in any other March in its history, and they carried the greatest tonnage of cargo ever recorded for the month. Their number was 536, against 526 in March of 1935 and March of 1929. The cargo figures are even more striking. Last year the total carried was 2,634,000 tons. This year it was 3,016,000. The corresponding figure for 1929 was 2,742,000.

How seriously traffic through the canal was affected by the various strikes of seamen in the recent past is disclosed by the record of commercial passage in the last twelve months. In October 482 vessels used the canal. In November the number was 368. In December it fell to 341. January saw a rise to 399; the passages in February were 377. With March the patronage of the canal went to its high mark, and consequently the tolls collected were the highest, reaching $2,355,149.04, against $2,293,874.51 for March of last year.

"PUPILS AREN'T FIREPROOF!"

Writing under the above title, in the New York Herald Tribune magazine, T. Alfred Fleming discusses the appalling problem of hazardous schools.

Mr. Fleming is an authority on this matter—formerly a clergyman, he happened to be present when the Collinswood school burned many years ago, and aided in the rescue. Thereafter he left the pulpit and gave his life to preaching the gospel of fire prevention. As a representative of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, he has inspected thousands of American schools, now and old, big and little—and he reports that two-thirds of them are fire traps. Every day, five school fires occur in this country—and only "dumb luck," to use Mr. Fleming's words, keeps them from becoming major tragedies.

Just how bad are our schools? They are unquestionably far worse than any parent imagines. Mr. Fleming has seen supposedly safe schools where the janitors thought fire extinguishers were insect sprays, and schools where students were notified ten minutes in advance of fire drills! He has gone through 40 schools in one city and found 200 inexcusable life hazards such as the excessive storage of gasoline in the building, 30 defective emergency doors, etc. As he says, "And after each new shock I thank God that we are so lucky."

Maybe the school your children attend is safe—and maybe it is not. And here is a matter where guesswork isn't enough—public opinion should demand that competent, disinterested engineers make a thorough inspection of every school plant, and their recommendations be followed. Pupils aren't fireproof!

The MOUTHPIECE

EDGAR WALLACE and ROBERT CURTIS

READ THIS FIRST:
A cable from America excites the interest of the photographer in the dingy law office of Stuckey & Stuckey, London. Upon his arrival Charles Stuckey learns that the Jacqueline Smith, daughter of one of his few respectable clients, now on the continent with her mother, has inherited $1,500,000 from an American uncle.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 3
THE MAN who entered the solicitor's office flung his hat unceremoniously on Stuckey's desk and sank heavily, without invitation, into the only chair which offered any degree of comfort. He glanced around at Bells and jerked his head faintly but authoritatively in the direction of the door. The clerk turned on his heel and vanished into the outer office.

Charles Stuckey looked supremely uncomfortable, as he always did in the presence of this portly, overfed man with the florid countenance and the faintly mocking expression in the dark-brown eyes, which were a trifle too small and set a shade too closely together.

For some moments no word was spoken: the two men sat regarding each other. A man in the early fifties, Colonel Alec Lutman had once been a handsome and imposing figure. Those who knew him best and disliked him most said that Lutman's name could not be found in the Army List and that the prefix "Colonel" had, indeed, no more justification, when applied to Lutman, than the fact that women succumb more readily to a title, particularly a military title.

At last the solicitor, with an obvious effort as of a man shaking himself free from some dominating influence, broke the silence.

"What have you come for, Lutman?"

The smile on the other's face widened.

"My dear Charles!" he protested. "Scarcely the way to greet an old friend! I do hope you don't employ the same effusive manner toward all your—er—clients."

The solicitor scowled. "I'm sorry," he said, "but I'm in no mood this morning for badinage. Did you want to see me about anything in particular? Because, if not, I have several appointments."

Colonel Lutman regarded him with an air of appreciative benevolence.

"The one thing I admire most about you, Charles, is your stern sense of duty. It is that which makes rising young lawyers—er—rise," he finished rather lamely.

Stuckey made an impatient gesture and looked at his wrist watch.

"I hope," went on his visitor, "that you have not, under pressure of your professional duties, overlooked one of my very important appointments this morning."

Charles frowned.

"You mean...?"

"I see you have. Even promising young solicitors..."

"Oh, for Heaven's sake, Lutman, come to the point."

The Colonel sighed and dropped his bantering tone.

"All right, I will," he said. "Jim Aspin comes out of Dartmouth this morning and is by now—he glanced up at the clock on the dusty mantelpiece—"well on his way to London and to this office."

Stuckey gave a violent start.

"Jim? Out! But I thought..."

"Quite. You thought he wasn't due for another six months. But Jim has been a very blue-eyed boy and has earned a special remission for something or other. He should be here in about an hour."

The solicitor's features registered his distaste.

"But what's he coming here for? I don't want to see him."

"Perhaps not," the Colonel's manner reverted to the grandiose.

"But I deemed it advisable that the—er—reunion should take place here, under the aegis, as it were, of our legal representative. You see," he went on to explain, "when

"My dear Charles! Scarcely the way to greet an old friend!"

I heard from Jimmy the glad tidings of his early release, I gathered somewhat—er—score with me concerning his incarceration."

"You mean he knows you shopped him?"

Lutman raised a hand in a gesture of protest.

"Shopped," Charles? Really, that is hardly a dignified word."

"Dignity be damned!" Stuckey interrupted. "I speak the language of my clients. And it's not so unfamiliar to you, either."

Lutman waved the point aside.

"Anyway," he continued, "Jimmy, as I say, is feeling a sense of grievance and is breathing vengeance and slaughter against me. I therefore wrote to him and arranged to meet him here. You see, Charles,"—again his wordy pose dropped from him and he spoke simply and earnestly—"something's got to be done about Jimmy."

"I've often thought that," grunted the other. "He's a lousy..."

"Yes, yes, I agree: he's all that and more. But I mean that we've got to find a way of making it up to him. He's done an eighteen-month stretch; the proceeds of the little affair which got him the sentence are practically all gone, and Jimmy will want considerable—er—smoothing down."

"What, exactly, do you mean?"

"I mean," said the Colonel, "that we've got to find a way of presenting Jimmy with some easy money."

"I'm nearly broke..."

The ringing of the telephone bell interrupted him. Charles lifted the receiver, listened, grunted a few monosyllables and then replaced the instrument.

"I'll have to slip out for a few minutes," he told Lutman. "Would you rather wait or...?"

"Oh, I'll wait here," was the reply. "Maybe the acute legal atmosphere with which you have permeated your surroundings will induce a bright idea."

Charles grunted.

"I'll not be long," he said, and passed through the outer office.

Left alone, the caller glanced around the dusty office with distaste. It was poorly, if adequately, furnished. A shelf of law books stood affixed by brackets on the opposite wall of the room; a few black janned deed-boxes, the names on which were quite illegible under the thick coating of dust, occupied the farther corner of the floor to his left. His gaze wandered to the large littered desk which occupied the center of the room and by the side of which stood the armchair in which he was now sitting. On the blotting pad was a small pile of letters, opened and unopened. Lutman reached out a hand and drew these casually toward him. It was with him not so much a principle as a habit of mind to keep himself as well informed as possible on all affairs, his own or anybody else's.

The cablegram arrested his attention and he read its contents, idly at first, then a second time with quickened interest. The message, which came from a firm of New York lawyers, informed Messrs. Stuckey & Stuckey, as the legal accredited representatives of Mrs. Millicent Smith and her daughter Jacqueline, that the latter had been bequeathed by her deceased uncle, Mr. Alan Redfern, the whole of his residual estate, amounting to some $1,500,000.

Lutman read and re-read the cablegram. His mind held no idea at the moment in what way the facts disclosed could be of any possible interest to him; but one of his most abiding principles was that money in the possession of other people was always absorbing interest to a man of his own sly, sly needs. He never heard or read stories of the accession of sudden wealth without his ingeniously fertile brain being set to work over the transference of that wealth to his own banking account could be effected with the minimum of risk to himself. That such schemes rarely attained to fruition was no deterrent to Colonel Lutman; he continued to indulge his habit of evolving them.

He sat for some minutes in concentrated thought, the cablegram dangling loosely from his fingers. When Stuckey re-entered his office some ten minutes later, it was to find his visitor sitting bolt upright in his chair, a sparkle in his small, acquisitive eyes, his whole expression that of a man who has solved a difficult problem.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

TRADE MARK REGISTERED

WASHINGTON—Watch for some fireworks within the Federal Communications Commission within the near future.

For a long time the FCC has been one of the most haphazard and politically-minded institutions in Washington, and now some of the practices below its surface are coming to the top.

One of these is the custom certain radio lawyers have of coralling a bevy of Commission stenographers to entertain their visiting clients on dull Washington evenings.

Another is the substitution of papers in the Commission's files, accomplished by certain radio lawyers through the cooperation of friendly FCC stenographers.

Another is the setting up of dummy companies in order to secure or oppose the granting of wavelength licenses.

A group of righteous FCC Commissioners, irate at what has been going on under their own noses, are now investigating the latter practice. They will soon expose the fact that a Washington law firm set up a corporation composed of three stenographers in order to file petitions with the Commission regarding radio licenses at Cheyenne, Wyo., Portland and Astoria, Maine.

Simple System

The system is very simple. The dummy corporation applies for a license in order to prevent another company from obtaining it. Or again the dummy may get a license, then turn around and sell it to a bonafide company. Or the dummy may operate on behalf of the company which already owns a wavelength, and by applying for an additional channel, keep a competitor out.

While accomplishing all this the dummy consists of three stenographers.

Another FCC development attracting attention is the sudden reversal of Examiner John P. Bramhall in favor of increased power for the Boston station WMEX, in which ex-Governor Curley is reported to be interested. Bramhall had expressed opposition to upping the station in February. But suddenly and mysteriously he reversed himself.

There has been a lot of internal rowing among FCC commissioners regarding a clean-up. Old-line Democrats in the FCC fear a congressional investigation. Progressive Commissioners welcome it. They may get their wish.

Man O'War

As fanciers of thoroughbred horseflesh, Vice President Garner and Senator William Gibbs McAdoo are a bit dated.

En route to the Kentucky Derby with a party of other Democratic notables—all guests of Pennsylvania's popular Senator Guffey—Garner and McAdoo announced that they were betting on "Man O'War" to win.

"I'll bet you $10 he doesn't," said Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky, with a broad smile.

"I'll take that bet," said Garner. "Same here," said McAdoo.

While the money was being put down, Senator Sherman Minton of Indiana sauntered by, heard what was going on, and chimed in: "I'll bet you another $10 that Man O'War doesn't even go to the post."

"You're on," replied Garner and McAdoo; "this is too good to be true."

"And how!" Minton roared.

Later, when everyone in the party had been let in on the joke, Barkley and Minton announced to Garner and McAdoo that not Man O'War but his son, War Admiral, was the reigning favorite in the 1937 Derby.

They also told the Vice President and the Senator from California that they couldn't rob blind men or children, and that the bets were off.

Justice Van Devanter

The current term will be the last that Justice Willis Van Devanter serves on the Supreme Court.

He has definitely decided to retire. Van Devanter is 79 years old and in poor health. His 27 years on the bench are weighing heavily on him, and he will take advantage of the new Supreme Court pension law and return to private life. Under this measure, fathered by Chairman Hatton Sumners of the House Judiciary Committee, Justices can now retire on full pay—$20,000 a year.

Whether Van Devanter will announce his resignation when the Court quits for the summer, or wait until the President's Judiciary bill has been acted on by Congress, still is in doubt.

Opponents of the measure are eager for him to make his decision known immediately, as they are confident it would be the knockout blow to the Roosevelt plan.

Writing Prosperity

Returning prosperity is lifting a lot of writers off relief. WPA Writers' Project is losing its "clients" right and left. They go to magazine assignments, to newspaper offices, to Hollywood.

Before long only the slag will remain—writers who will never

SEDALIA'S SYMPHONY

Sedalia has completed its second Symphony Concert Series under the skilled directorship of Mr. Rosenthal, and aided by the untiring efforts of an active board, the orchestra has made a real place for itself in community life. This is right and fitting for the making of music and listening to music should be a part of any well-balanced individual's life, and by the same token should be a part of the life of any well-balanced community.

Now the season is over, and our fine volunteer musicians are through with rehearsals until next fall. It is hoped however that they will not put their instruments in their cases to gather dust until rehearsals begin again. We hope each of them will set aside a time for practice all during the summer so that they shall begin the next season even abler musicians than they now are. While it is true that the community greatly enjoys the concerts, and that we are indebted to these people for the free gift of their time and talent, still the members of the orchestra itself also draw great benefits from this endeavor. Playing under a skilled director such as Mr. Rosenthal supplements lessons for those who are studying with private teachers, and is doubly valuable for those who are no longer taking lessons. If each one takes his responsibility of practicing at home until rehearsals begin again, we should have a fine, trained eager group by next fall.

HAY FEVER POSSIBLY INHERITED

The so-called rose fever which is prevalent just now is due to two things—the sudden loading of the atmosphere with fine pollen grains from plants, and a peculiar state of the body cells of a certain percentage of the population.

The pollen grains are from plants with inconspicuous flowers, which are light and float for a long time in the wind. The disease was called "rose fever" because the rose is a conspicuous flower at that time, but the rose has a sticky pollen which would not be borne on wind.

How the people get that way is a mystery. It was thought for a while that they might have gotten an overdose at some time in childhood which acted the opposite of an ordinary infection. In other words, it made them hypersensitive rather than insensitive—that they were more likely to be poisoned in the presence of the offending substance than to throw it off. This, of course, is exactly the opposite of the immunology which occurs after an infection with typhoid fever or measles or smallpox, where one dose protects for life. We have experience with certain diseases, such as pneumonia, erysipelas and rheumatism, where one attack does seem to make a person susceptible to another. For that reason for a while this condition was called anaphylaxis, which is the opposite of prophylaxis.

Born With Sensitivity
However, it is now known that an initial attack is not necessary; that the body cells seem to be born with a certain sensitivity to these various substances.

This hereditary nature of the condition has been denied by some people. The study of identical twins would seem to be a good field to prove or disprove it. Several have been made on this subject. In a study of 71 twins with different forms of allergy, it was found that in similar instances both twins were sensitive to the same substance.

I have before me the study of a number of families, including families with identical twins. This is a paper read before the Association for the Study of Allergy. It shows

DO YOU Suffer from Nerves?

MANY women both young and middle-aged suffer from periodic pains in side or back—from nervousness, irritability and discomforts associated with functional disturbances from "heat flashes," they should take that vegetable tonic favorably known for seventy years as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Read this: Mrs. Ella Wood of 1223 Missouri Ave., Joplin, Mo., said: "During middle age I suffered from 'nerves.' I would get headache and would have pains across my back, all due to functional disturbances. I used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and my nerves were calm and I felt so much stronger." Buy now!

AMERICANS PLAY CATCH WHILE IN SPANISH STRIFE

Ball Players Heedless as Explosive Bullet Hits
Nearby

BY ALEXANDER H. HUHLL
MADRID, May 17.—In a typically American game of "catch," Broadway and the Golden Gate rubbed shoulders in a little stretch of trench "somewhere in the Jarama front" today where the Abraham Lincoln battalion of the Spanish Republican army is doing part of the job of holding the insurgents south of the capital.

"We have men from every part of the United States in our battalion," the commander of the stretch told me.

As we came up the hill to within 100 feet of the trenches, the thud of a baseball on a glove stopped me short. There were a couple of unmistakable Americans playing catch just as they might on any back lot in the United States of a Saturday afternoon.

A bullet whined overhead, then cracked sharply.

"An explosive bullet," the officer remarked. "It only takes a tick to set them off."

The ball players had not even noticed it.

As we watched the ball players, a sharp explosion to the left boomed 50 yards away and a great column of smoke shot up.

"They are dropping trench mortar bombs on a new position. Let's see what damage they have done," the officer said.

A group of a dozen Americans, barely in their twenties, had left off digging a machine gun position for a moment.

"They've been getting pretty close, but so far they haven't hit anything," one said. "If they would only drop one in the middle of this hole it would save us a lot of digging."

Three more days and they will have been on duty three months with only short occasional individual leaves.

The battalion already has its heroes. There is Capt. Martin Hourihan of New York, who commands and has the enthusiasm of a born soldier.

Then there is David Jordan, also of New York, who is political commissar and who was wounded leading his men over the top. Another is Oliver Low, a Negro from Chicago, who is second in command of the machine gun company.

Just back of the trenches is a little graveyard. There lie the bodies of 40 Americans, killed repulsing the insurgent Jarama drive several months ago. They rest beside the English dead of the neighboring company and little cauls of stone with wooden name boards mark the spots.

VIEWS OFFERED HOW DEPRESSION MAY BE AVERTED

R. F. C. Chairman Jones
Says Conditions Be Good Many Years

NEW YORK, May 17.—Some of the country's economists and industrialists took a look today at a prediction another depression may be just around the corner and said something can be done about it.

In a survey of opinion on a prediction of Gen. Charles G. Dawes that a business recession is due in 1939, many agreed with him. Others did not. Those who did advanced a variety of reasons as to how it might be prevented. Generally they said:

Cut national and local expenses and balance the budget;

Revive building;

Rehabilitate factory equipment;

Arrive at the "proper value of the dollar in terms of commodity prices and keep the value permanently."—In other words, have a "managed dollar."

"Maintain freedom of individual enterprise;"

Create more wealth;

Revalue the dollar and increase interest rates.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, disagreed entirely with General Dawes.

At Kansas City, Jones said: "I don't believe it. Conditions are good. They will continue to be good for many years, because the country has been on half rations for five or six years. We've got to catch up."

Scott Loftin, former United States senator, and ex-president of the American Bar Association, at Jacksonville, Fla., said he believed another depression was bound to come, but he did not know when.

"My considered opinion," he said, "is that it can be postponed many years by drastically cutting national and local governmental expenditures and balancing the budget. Otherwise, it may come two years hence as Dawes says."

Senator Thomas, Democrat of Oklahoma, in Washington said: "There is only one way in which a new depression may be averted: That way is to agree upon the proper value of the dollar in terms of commodity prices and to keep that value permanently. Otherwise all will be chaos, recovery will be retarded, strikes will occur, the budget cannot be balanced and prices cannot be controlled."

UAW DELAYS ITS CAMPAIGN START ON FORD PLANTS

Draft Plans For Conference on Changes In General Motors Pact

DETROIT, May 17.—Agreement for negotiation of wage demands of maintenance workers ended a four-hour strike that closed the Midland plant of the Briggs Manufacturing Company today. Production will be resumed Tuesday morning.

DETROIT, May 17.—The Briggs Manufacturing Company closed its Midland plant employing 2,000 men today following a walkout of maintenance workers. Officials conferred with representatives of the United Automobile Workers to adjust the dispute.

U. A. W. leaders said the walkout after wage demands were refused, was not authorized. An agreement with the Briggs production, signed April 18, forbids such an interruption of production. Company officials said the plant probably would reopen tomorrow. It produces bodies for the Lincoln-Zephyr division of the Ford Motor Co.

The union is preparing for an intensive drive to organize Ford employees, and also is drafting plans for a conference on proposed changes in its agreement with General Motors Corp.

Union officials said the opening of two offices in Dearborn, home of the Ford company, had been deferred until later in the week. They indicated that the postponement was caused by a desire to make "something of a splash" in inaugurating the campaign.

Letters to U. A. W. A. locals in General Motors cities disclosed the plans for a conference on revision of the General Motors agreement. Homer Martin, president of the International union, said the conference will be held "not later than the first part of June," but the date has not been fixed. June 11 is the first date on which 60-days notice may be given by either General Motors or the union on intention to seek revision of the agreement.

Martin said the conference also would seek methods of eliminating unauthorized strikes in General Motors plants.

Four such strikes affected more than 16,000 General Motors workers in Cleveland, Janesville, Wis., and Saginaw, Mich., last week. All were back at work today.

The week opened with the Ford company distributing to its workers cards bearing "forisms" stating the management's views about labor.

The first statement on the cards said "a monopoly of jobs in this country is just as bad as a monopoly of bread."

The last statement said "there is no mystery about the connection between corporation control and labor control. They are the two ends of the same rope. A little group of those who control both capital and labor will sit down in New York and settle prices, dividends and wages."

This was interpreted by observers in the industry as a reiteration of Henry Ford's declaration of independence from financiers and labor leaders alike, of his expressed contention that organizers of money or workmen move in the same direction, although on different planes, toward remote control monopoly and obliteration of individual significance.

"DISCRIMINATION" IN WAGE ACT CHARGED

By The Associated Press. WASHINGTON, May 17.—Representative Orville Zimmerman, Kennett, Mo., Democrat, said today the labor department's interpretation of the Walsh-Healey act has resulted in "discrimination" against the south and midwest.

Zimmerman said the first six months' operation of the act, which imposes minimum wage and maximum hour limitations on firms contracting with the government, "shows clearly that the fears of the middle west and south were well founded and their protests were justified."

"Congress intended that the minimum wage be fixed at the prevailing wage obtaining in the location where the goods were made or furnished," Zimmerman said.

Instead, he asserted, the labor department "made an arbitrary minimum wage for the entire country, without considering a wage differential. This has deterred southern and mid-western contractors from bidding."

"The Walsh-Healey act," Zimmerman said, "is a splendid law for large industrial centers where highly skilled labor is abundant, where machinery is modern and efficient and where transportation costs, because of density of traffic, are much cheaper than in the middle west and south."

During the first six months the act was in effect, he said, five states—New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Connecticut—furnished the government 47.7 per cent of its materials and supplies, while 18 states in the

MOTHER MAKES A CONFESSION SHE KILLED DAUGHTER

Crime Near Brookhaven, L. I. Revealed When Body Found

By The Associated Press. NEW YORK, May 17.—Police said today that Mrs. Helen Tierman, 28-year-old attractive blonde, confessed she killed her 8-year-old daughter, Helen, and assaulted her 5-year-old son, James in woods near Brookhaven, Long Island.

Deputy Chief Inspector Francis J. Kear, announced the confession. "She told me that she committed the acts because she was in love with a man, but couldn't accommodate him and the children in the small flat the family lived in," the inspector stated.

Kear said the woman confessed that she alone did the deed. The girl's body was found, cut and burned, yesterday afternoon at 2:30 p. m. Her little wounded brother was nearby.

Kear said the love motive was suspected and that questioning was pursued along that line.

"She made a complete confession, giving all the details," the inspector said.

Shortly before Kear announced the confession a man believed to be a suitor of Mrs. Tierman was brought into the West 47th street police station. Police would not say whether Mrs. Tierman was confronted with the man, but it was understood his appearance weakened her reserve.

Two incidents led to Mrs. Tierman's questioning. An official of a day nursery in which the children were boarded days recognized a picture of the boy in a newspaper and called police.

About the same time the little boy recovered sufficiently to tell Suffolk County police his name, his mother's name and the address of the nursery.

Suffolk County police said the boy also told them he saw his mother hit his sister.

Definitions and explanations of principle points:
Arrangement is the harmonious placing of flowers, foliage, and container to give a complete and pleasing effect.

Color should be clear, bright, true to variety, free from blemishes, and of pleasing hue.

Condition is the absence of wilting, fading, or blemishes. The spike should be severely penalized if more than three florets have been removed.

Form refers to the correctness of shape or outline.

Size should be judged by the actual measurement.

The stem should be long, thick, and free from blemishes.

Foliage should be characteristic of the variety. In general it should be deep green, thick, and free from blemishes.

Quality refers to the nearness to perfection.

JAIL INTERIOR IS GIVEN A CLEANING

It was house cleaning day at the county jail today and you can take it from John Starkey, turnkey at the institution, that the place is hardly recognizable now.

With a hose borrowed from the city fire department the inmates at the "bustle" gave the building a thorough cleaning.

"It was a swell job, too," said Keeper Starkey.

FEDERATION OF LABOR OPENS ITS STATE MEETING

Arnold Griffith Says Missouri Lags on Mine Safety Laws

By The Associated Press. JEFFERSON CITY, May 17.—Arnold Griffith, chief inspector of the state bureau of mines, told the opening session of the State Federation of Labor convention here today Missouri has "the worst mine safety laws of any state in the United States."

No changes have been made in the existing statutes in the last twelve years, he said, to keep pace with the increasing use of mining machinery.

Telling the labor delegates he had drafted and submitted to the present general assembly "four bills which would do much to remedy this situation," he added:

"And just last week they killed the last bill I introduced. The present session has not passed a single bill that would help correct labor conditions for the men in our mines."

"In the next two years, if there are any men injured or killed in our mines, the fault will not lie with your state labor department—it will lie in the laps of the Missouri legislature."

Griffith said the recent Fulton and Moberly mine disasters, with their losses in life, would not have resulted fatally "had those mines had escape shafts."

Requirements in the present Missouri mining laws are avoided, he charged, by the "formation of co-operatives" and by sale of stock to workers, "which makes them part owners" on such a co-operative basis.

He advocated the drafting of proposed laws by a "committee of miners and mine operators" to be presented to the next legislative session, and said the retail coal dealers of the state, in recent session at Columbia, "have pledged their support."

The convention adopted a resolution congratulating St. Louis hotel workers for recognition of their unions won in Sunday's settlement of a threatening strike in that city—a settlement which the resolution said includes "closed shop" status for the city's major hotels.

The three-day session opened today with Reuben T. Wood, of Springfield, federation president, presiding.

RESERVE OFFICERS TO CONTACT CAMP

By The Associated Press. COLUMBIA, Mo., May 17.—More than 250 reserve officers are expected to attend the fifth annual contact camp here of the Missouri Reserve Officers' Association Friday and Saturday.

Newly commissioned officers from the University of Missouri R. O. T. C. will be assigned to units. Brig. Gen. E. M. Statton, Kansas City, commanding general of the Missouri National Guard, will present sabers to outstanding cadets, at a ceremony on the university campus.

"Shall We Dance?" Asks Fred TO PACKED HOUSES AT THE LIBERTY YESTERDAY

If Fred Astaire isn't asking Ginger Rogers "Shall we dance?" it isn't because that would be the most natural question in the world, in their new RKO Radio co-starring picture, for that is its title, "Shall We Dance," which is now playing through Wednesday at the Liberty. With musical numbers composed and written by the two Gershwins, George and Ira, a superb production managed by Pandro S. Berman, who produced all their former co-starring successes, and special dances worked out by Fred himself and his corps of clever assistants—and with more elaborate and beautiful settings than ever—this latest film musical is said to outdo everything that they have done before—and no greater recommendation is needed for an Astaire Rogers screen show!

though acreages were reduced by drought and cold weather. The strawberry crop, expected to ripen May 20 in most sections, was estimated at 90,000 crates as compared with 301,000 crates a year ago and a 5-year average of 677,000 crates. The average dropped from 8,600 in 1936 to 4,500 this year, the smallest on record.

Life Insurance Week Observed By Rotary Club

investment to the shoulders of a great insurance company. The old question, "How much insurance did he leave?" has given place to a more practical one—"How long will his income be continued?"

Mr. Sparr discussed the necessity for a planned life insurance program in every family, which takes care first of the most urgent demands that can be anticipated.

Decrying hit-or-miss methods of planning a life insurance estate, Mr. Sparr said that the program should be so designed as to meet the two greatest hazards in life—the danger of dying too soon and leaving helpless dependents to shift for themselves; and the danger of living too long, of being confronted by helpless old age through having out-lived personal earning power.

Picturing a man, aged 30, with a wife and infant, Mr. Sparr said that it is generally agreed that a man's first obligation is to leave a clean financial slate in the event of unexpected death. In addition to paying off creditors, he said, that a mortgage on the home could be properly included as a part of the "cleanup" obligation.

The second vital obligation is that of providing the widow with a monthly income beginning at the husband's death and continuing for as long thereafter as may be arranged for," he said.

The third vital obligation of the man in question is that of providing for his own financial independence throughout his declining years, after age has ended his earning power. Once he has assured the continuance of his income to his family in the event of his premature death, it is only fair that a man turn his attention to the problem of providing funds for himself in the evening of his life.

Charles Gratiot, Jr., Had Distinguished Career In Early History of Missouri

Few names are more important in the early history of St. Louis than that of Gratiot. Cultured, wealthy and influential, the loyal support of the American government by this distinguished French family helped to pave the way for the American succession in Upper Louisiana. Charles Gratiot, Senior, founder of the family in St. Louis, rendered many services to the American cause during the Revolution.

Charles Gratiot, Junior, the subject of this sketch, was the eldest of four sons of Charles Gratiot and Victoire Chouteau, daughter of Madame Chouteau. He was born in St. Louis on August 29, 1786. A scion of two powerful St. Louis families whose widespread business connections and influence extended from St. Louis to Canada, New Orleans, the Atlantic seaboard and Europe, young Gratiot was a boy of seventeen at the time of the transfer of Louisiana to the United States.

Shortly after the transfer, in accordance with a suggestion of Governor Wilkinson that the sons of some of the leading French families be given positions in the U. S. Army with the view of realizing President Jefferson's wish to conciliate the French inhabitants Gratiot was appointed with three other French youths to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

Upon his graduation with distinction in 1806, Gratiot was assigned to the corps of U. S. engineers with the rank of second lieutenant. In this branch of the service in which he manifested more than usual abilities, he was to serve approximately thirty years during which time he rose rapidly to the foremost ranks of the army. Significantly, he was the only one of the four French youths appointed by Jefferson who recompensed the U. S. government by following a military career.

During and following the War of 1812, Gratiot rendered distinguished services. As chief engineer in General Harrison's army, he built Fort Gratiot at the foot of Lake Huron in Michigan. At Fort Meigs he took charge of a heavy battery and managed it with ability and effect during the severe siege of May 15, 1813. In 1815, he superintended the construction of fortifications on the Delaware River and from 1819-29 planned and erected the defenses of Hampton Roads. Not the least of his services was his appointment, about 1835, of young Lieutenant R. E. Lee to construct the works on Bloody Island and between the Island and the Illinois shore which saved the harbor of St. Louis from threatened destruction by encroaching sandbars in the Mississippi River. At the height of his power during a great era of internal improvements, it is significant that Gratiot, during his administration as Chief Engineer of the U. S. Army in charge of the Corps of Engineers and Engineering Bureau at Washington from 1828-1838, was responsible for the expenditure of nearly $5,000,000 for the construction of the national Cumberland Road, of $9,000,000 for the building of the Chesapeake and Ohio and Dismal Swamp canals and of another $9,000,000 for the erection of fortifications including those at Hampton Roads, and for other appropriations besides. At the beginning of the ten years period, in March, 1829, in recognition of his "meritorious service," he was brevetted brigadier general in the U. S. Army at the age of forty-three.

Suddenly, climaxing his meteoric rise and brilliant achievements, on December 4, 1838, Gratiot was prematurely removed from office by President Van Buren. The dismissal came over a matter of difference with the accounting officer involving a sum approximating $30,000 which Gratiot claimed that he had a right to draw upon the government. Long years of litigation between Gratiot and the U. S. government ensued as a result.

Gratiot, reduced to supporting himself and his family as a clerk in the General Land Office, fought with bitterness and vehemence until his death on May 18, 1855, to clear his name and to obtain his reinstatement. Though the matter was eventually taken to the U. S. Supreme Court, it was never cleared up. Interestingly, the committee on the judiciary reported in 1852 in part: "The career of the petitioner (Gratiot) in the Army of the U. S. . . . is a matter of history that may justly excite the pride and admiration of every American citizen. . . . It seems to the committee that both the pleas (of Gratiot) are reasonable and should receive attention, urged as they are with the earnestness of conscious rectitude by a gallant soldier."

Though Gratiot was born and died in St. Louis, Missouri has never honored him. Michigan, however, has a Gratiot county, two Gratiot townships, a Gratiot highway and Gratiot streets in Port Huron and Detroit named for him.

Moore-Morrison Wedding

Miss Dorothy Moore, manager of the ladies department of Sage's, and Jack Morrison, of Moberly, formerly of Sedalia, were married in Moberly, Sunday, by a Methodist minister, their friends here have learned. The bride conveyed the news of the marriage to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Moore, of La Monte by telephone Sunday.

Mrs. Morrison, nee Miss Moore, was reared in La Monte, where she graduated from the high school. She attended the State Teachers college, Warrensburg, and later Central Business College, this city. She accepted a position at Waldman's, later taking charge of the department at Sage's.

Mr. Morrison came to Sedalia from his home in Salina, Kas., to take charge of the shoe department at Montgomery Ward and Company, and last February was transferred to Moberly where he now holds the position of assistant manager.

The couple will reside in Moberly.

Miss Koenig In Recital

Miss Loretta Koenig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Koenig, was featured in a piano recital given in Kessler Hall, Central Wesleyan College, Warrenton, Thursday evening. Miss Koenig is the pupil of Kathleen B. Halter, professor of Music at Central Wesleyan College. Miss Koenig's performance was characterized by the unusual accuracy with which she executed all her well-selected numbers. The numbers, which included, Prelude Fugue (Bach), Ecossaises (Beethoven), Berceuse (Chopin), Le Papillon (Lavallee), Cradle Song (Strauss-Brahms), Le Cathedrale engloutie (Debussy), and the Sea (Palmgren), were well received by the audience.

Mrs. Halter assisted her pupil in two duo arrangements, Hispana (Pollock) and Holiday (Ponce), the latter a very modern and descriptive composition.

George Harper, tenor of the Central Wesleyan Male Quartet, assisted in the recital with three selections and the male quartet sang four numbers during the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Koenig attended the recital and returned home Friday afternoon.

Wed at Knob Noster

Miss Audrey Pauline Knapp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Knapp of this city, and Robert James Palmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Palmer of Beaman, were married at 7 o'clock Saturday night by the Rev. S. G. McCluney at Knob Noster.

The bride wore a grey suit trimmed in fox fur and white accessories and her corsage was rose buds and sweet peas.

Attending the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Martin and Mrs. Glen Jones, all of Sedalia.

Following the ceremony the wedding party returned to the home of the bride's parents, where a pink and white wedding cake on which were mounted a miniature bride and groom was served to the guests.

Mr. Palmer is employed at the local Montgomery Ward store and he and his bride will reside at 923 East Fifth street.

Helpers Class

The Helpers Class of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, will meet at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Carrie Warren, 1510 South Monticau avenue.

So-Mor Circle

The Pettis So-Mor Circle will meet at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Herman Miller, 1210 South Carr avenue, with Mrs. Robert Sterling, Mrs. E. C. Snavely, Mrs. Ben Stoner and Mrs. Edward Downey, assisting hostesses.

Mary Potter Sprecher is now at Boul's Beauty Shop, 5th and Kentucky.—Adv.

ATTEMPT TO ROB A SERVICE STATION

An attempt to rob the Standard Oil Co. station at Fourth street and Osage avenue, was made sometime late Sunday night or early this morning. The thieves broke a small glass in a window in the men's toilet and then endeavored to crawl over it. In trying to crawl over the window the window frame was smashed.

It is believed the thieves in making too much noise were frightened away.

Fire Companies Called

The fire companies at 11:05 o'clock this morning were called to the residence of E. M. Mehl, 1402 South Warren avenue, where Mrs. Mehl was rendering some bacon which caught fire as she opened an oven door.

No damage resulted.

Long Island Concerned Over Attempts to Sell Whitman's Birthplace

Plan to Convert Famous Poet's Home Into Roadhouse
Stirs "Worshippers" as Celebration of 118th Birthday Nears

By FRANK A. CULVER
Central Press Correspondent
HUNTINGTON, L. I., May 15.—Long Island, already turned historically-minded at the approach of its island-wide tercentenary celebration, has learned with consternation that one of its most important historical monuments, the birthplace of Walt Whitman, is up for sale . . . possibly as a road house.

On May 31, the 118th birthday of Walt Whitman, scores of literary folk and other Whitman admirers have been wont annually to visit the little New England type house amid the west hills, south of here, which Walt's father built and in which Walt himself spent much of his childhood and youth. May 31 of this year will mark the opening of the week set aside for Long Island's observance of the 300th anniversary of the founding of its first white settlement.

Stunning Blow
The number of pilgrims at the Whitman house on that day will be greatly increased by the crowds which the tercentenary celebration will attract. But reports have been circulated that even then workmen may be converting the shrine of Long Island's celebrated and internationally-famed poet into some sort of a drinking place. And the news is stunning to those who revere the Whitman house with veneration and affection.

Historical societies and private individuals have sought to buy the house but have been checked when the price was quoted at $30,000. No prospective buyer of the place, at the figure quoted, has been revealed as yet but it is hinted that the profits to be reaped from the commercialization of Whitman's birthplace could be considerable.

The present owners and tenants are Mr. and Mrs. John D. Watson, who bought the house in 1917 for a price quoted at "about $5,000." They have said that they desire to live in the west and must sell the Whitman homestead, and they assert that the $30,000 figure is not exorbitant. They point out that the old structure was rapidly decaying when they bought it and that their care probably has saved it from destruction.

The owners point out, also, that the town of Southampton on Long Island spent $60,000 to acquire the house about which John Howard Payne is said to have written "Home, Sweet Home."

Associations
But whatever the fate of the Whitman house, nothing can destroy the association with young Walt that this Whitman country possesses. There is scarcely a spot in this village that is not redolent of Walt's wanderings about "Pau-manok," his name for Long Island. History tells that Walter Whitman, father of the poet and rugged stock son of New England farmer stock, lived in Huntington town prior to 1816, when he married Louisa Van Velsor, daughter of a wealthy Long Island Dutch farmer who lived at Cold Spring Harbor, a few miles west of here. Just after his marriage, Walter Whitman chose a sheltered spot in the beautiful west hills, about three miles south of here, on which to build, with his own hands, a home.

It was a rugged little house, built in the strong and simple New England manner, boasting three sections whose roofs descended like staircases. Shingled without, it was a warm and intimate refuge. Walter cultivated an orchard there, and built a barn; and there were fertile fields around.

There was born Walt Whitman, second son in a family of seven, on May 31, 1818. He was only four when his parents moved from the west hills house to Brooklyn, but he had played among the grassy nooks and the close-set trees of the west hills and he did not forget them. When the family was in Brooklyn, Walt used to live in anticipation of infrequent visits to his Grandfather Van Velsor's farm at Cold Spring Harbor. And before he was 17 years of age, he had returned to the scenes of his infancy, roving Pau-manok from the quaint little village of Jamaica to the wilds of Montauk Point.

Widely Read
Walt was an omnivorous reader. He would be on sandy beaches, reading and listening to the gentle lapping of the waters of Long Island Sound; or perhaps he would lean with his book against a tree in a nearby grove. An imaginative mural painting in a Huntington hotel, the work of H. Willard Orlip, portrays Walt so reclined, communing with the spirits of those humanities to which he later gave voice in his "Leaves of Grass."

When he was about 17, Walt became an itinerant school teacher and newspaper writer in the Long Island village. He would give up the school room for the print shop; then the print shop for the school room.

In the hamlet of Woodbury, on the Jericho turnpike near here, there still stands a tiny school house in which Walt once taught. And here in Huntington, the weekly newspaper, "The Long Islander," of which Walt was the founder and first editor, is preparing soon to celebrate its 100th anniversary.

Walt's field soon spread beyond Long Island, but he returned to Pau-manok many times.

Today Walt Whitman's first home is an attractive place, surrounded by shrubbery and greenward. There is an orchard, and a well. It is furnished with antique pieces from the Watson family's relics, and it houses a considerable amount of Whitmaniana.

Long Islanders, interested in maintaining the Walt Whitman home as such recall the lines that Walt wrote about it in his "Poem of Days":

"O to go back to the place where I was born!
To hear the birds sing once more!
To ramble about the house and barn, and over the fields once more,
And through the orchard and along the old lanes once more..."

MAY MEETING HELD
BY TIPTON MOTHERS

The Mothers' club of Tipton, in its May meeting had as hostesses, Mesdames A. H. Lemweber, A. L. Pulley, Roy Pedego, L. O. Pulley, M. Newberger, E. N. Pizer, Ed Heinen and Stanley Palmer.

Spring flowers were used as decorations and several guests, other than members were present. Mrs. James Briscoe the president heard the business and Mrs. Jimmie McPherson was received into membership.

Mrs. E. N. Pizer as leader from the home economics unit had prepared a very excellent program. Mrs. Clement Schmidt, with her sister, Mrs. Wm. P. McVean as her pianist, sang as a voice number, "Villia." The devotional hour was the review of Mabel Cronise Jones' "Aschah," by Mrs. A. R. Snorgars. Mrs. Pizer then presented Miss Zagrodsky, of the Cooper County home economics extension department, who spoke in a most interesting way of her work and who demonstrated some of the things done, in connection. The high school students then appearing were Miss Forrest Ellen Pulley, a piano solo; Arthur Pedego, tenor solo; voice number, Mardel Finley and a trio by Misses Pulley, Finley and Carol Lee Wray and a mixed quartet from the high school.

During the conversation period a lunch was served.

ONE DAY STRIKE IN HOTELS AT ST. LOUIS SETTLED

Termination Averts
Spread to 20 Others in Hotel Association

By The Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, May 17.—Normal operations were resumed in St. Louis hotels today, following settlement of a one-day strike under terms providing for recognition of unions, a "closed shop" and negotiations for regulation of hours, improved working conditions and an increase in wages.

Termination of the walkout, which affected 2,000 workers in eight downtown hotels, averted its spread to 20 other hotels included in the St. Louis Hotel Association.

William F. Victor, president of the association, in announcing settlement of the strike late Saturday, after 16 hours' deliberations, said conferences on wages, hours, and working conditions would begin today between representatives of the association and the five striking American Federation of Labor unions. Negotiations will end by June 1.

Managers agreed to unionization of all employees, with the exception of clerks, auditors, checkers, control employees, cashiers and executives. All other employees are to become members of the union within 10 days, and new employees shall join the union 15 days after they are hired.

The strike began Saturday morning after union demands for a "closed shop" had been refused. Unions involved in the walkout included waitresses, cooks and pastry clerks, bartenders, waiters and the union of miscellaneous employees as bellboys, elevator operators, maids and laundry workers.

The tieup affected the Jefferson, Statler, Lennox, Mayfair and Mark Twain, in the downtown area, and the Chase, Park Plaza and Washington in the west end.

GIVEN SURPRISE AT PURCHASE HOME

Mr. and Mrs. George Purchase and family and Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Rank were surprised Friday evening at the Purchase home when their many neighbors and friends gathered to spend one more evening with them before they leave for their new home in Washington.

The guests were sorry to lose these good people from the community but wish them success in their new home.

After a very pleasant evening of games and conversation refreshments of cake, cocoa and coffee were served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. George Purchase and family, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Rank, Floyd Vernon and Charlene, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Loges and family, Rev. and Mrs. J. D. Briggs and Fred, Mr. and Mrs. George Landis, Mr. and Mrs. George Perriguy and family, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Sanders, Edith and James, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Williams and son, Mr. and Mrs. George Williams and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Rhodes, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bucher, Charles and J. Z. Comfort and Mr. and Mrs. Leland Lewis and Bobby Lee.

GENE HORNER STARS ON HILL AS SEDALIA A'S BEAT IONIA 11-4

The Sedalia Athletics turned in their second win of the season Sunday afternoon by taking the measure of the Ionia Merchants by a score of 11 to 4 in a game on the Ionia diamond.

Gene Horner pitched the first eight innings for the Sedalia team and during his stay on the mound the Athletics ran up a 11 to 0 score. Horner struck out 15 of the opposing batters and allowed only two hits. Manager Nichols pitched the ninth inning for the A's and was rapped for four runs. He fanned one batter to make a total of 16 strikeouts for the afternoon.

The Athletics had considerable trouble in connecting with the offerings of Tubing for the first three innings, but as the game progressed the Sedalians added more punch, scoring several times. Knoop pitched the ninth for the Ionia team.

The feature of the game was the pitching of Horner although the spectacular play of the day was made by Case, Athletics' left fielder, who speared a drive that was headed for the fence. Manager Nichols, playing first base in place of Livenood, led the Athletics hitters with three safe blows, followed by Light, Barnes and Small with two apiece.

The Athletics will open their home season next Sunday against the Tweedie Shoe Company team of Jefferson City. Knob Noster will be met the following Sunday and on June 6 the strong Kansas City Police team. Last season the Athletics defeated the Tweedies by a score of 2 to 1.

The entire Athletics lineup was used in the game against Ionia. Those performing were: Nichols, 1bp; Lobauch, 2b; Barnes 2b-ef; Light, ss; Small, 3b; Case, lf; Waters, lf; Brownfield, cf; Zey, cf; and Thomas, rf; Summers and Simon, c, and Horner, p.

THE SPORTS ROUNDUP

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, May 17.—Mehbs Lou Gehrig was a bit hard to get to when the Yanks stopped off in Grand Rapids, Mich., last week....anyway, the boys out there have formed a "we don't want Gehrig's autograph" club, with 25 charter members....That's Benny Friedman, City College coach, you hear moaning...."All we need up here is seven linemen and four backs," says Benny...."We have the place"....When Judge Fake handed down his fight decision, Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, president of Madison Square Garden, was packing up for a Florida vacation....Which may give you an idea of how strongly the Cannel felt Braddock and Schmeling would fight in his big bowl June 3.

Carl Hubbell gets his big test when he goes after No. 22 (in a row) against Dizzy Dean at St. Louis tomorrow....Don't shed any tears for Jess Harper, former Notre Dame coach....They've just struck oil on his Texas ranch and Jess will be doing all right....If the Giants are dickering for Morris Aronovich of the Phillies, you can't blame them, can you?...After watching every club in the American league, Joe McCarthy opines the Tigers are the ones his Yankees have to whip....Patsy Perroni, the Cleveland heavyweight, has only two fingers on his left hand.

If War Admiral wore a hat we'd say take it off, boy....Quite a hoss, that, and a credit to his grand old daddy....Rain or shine, it's all the same for War Admiral....Tennis experts here favor Bryan (Bills) Grant over Frankie Parker for a Davis cup team post....John Henry Lewis' failure to tag Patsy Perroni the other night didn't make John Henry look any better as a heavy-weight prospect....Kingfish Levinsky (who had a ticket on the Century last Tuesday) is still in town

ANOTHER COLLINS IN BASEBALL

Joe Wood
Eddie Collins, general manager of the Boston Red Sox and formerly one of the greatest second basemen of all times, is reading the sports pages closely nowadays. His son, Jimmy, is center fielder on the Yale varsity team, and here you see him with Coach Joe Woods, former great pitcher of the Red Sox.

...and keeping fairly busy taking bows at fights, appearing on the radio and picking his teeth on W. 49th street....The King says he left London before the coronation because the town wasn't big enough for two kings....Joe DiMaggio is doing so well in Lou Gehrig's clean-up spot with the Yankees, Joe McCarthy intends leaving him there. That very entertaining boxing magazine, "Bang," advertises Tommy Spiegel as the lightweight champion of the south....What's happened to Chino Alvarez?

DECLINES ON THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, May 17.—(AP)—Leading stocks gave ground substantially today in the slowest hour market session in more than 2 years.

While a few issues edged up modestly, and many were unchanged, declines of fractions to 2 points or more predominated at the close.

The ticker tape was at a standstill for minutes at a time, and in the fourth hour only 50,000 shares changed hands.

The news marketwise was neither especially good or bad, but buying, as well as selling incentives, were notably lacking.

Transfers approximated 500,000 shares. April 1, 1935 the turnover amounted to about 444,000.

It's a wonder how just one hole in a screen attracts all manner of insects. But don't blame the screen, it's rust that breaks the screen wires, makes screen holes. Just one coat of this screen enamel protects against rust. What's more, it's easy to apply, won't clog the mesh, makes screens bright and attractive, and it prevents rain from washing copper stains onto your house. One quart will cover the screens of an average 8-room home.

FLASHES OF LIFE IN LATE DISPATCHES

A Fall Into Heaven
CALABASAS, Calif., May 17.—(AP)—Jiggs, nine-year old cow pony, fell 450 feet into a dead-end canyon and didn't break a bone.

But he did get a swell break. There are no trails out of the canyon and attempts of his owner, W. C. Du Brock, to reach Jiggs with block and tackle have failed. So Jiggs may remain there the rest of his days, brouching on the grassy slopes and drinking from a fresh spring.

Sunday Meeting
BUTLER, Mo., May 17.—(P)—Motor cars driven by two brothers, County Recorder A. B. Cummings, and H. G. Cummings, township Democratic committeeman, collided head on near here.

County Recorder Cummings suffered a fractured knee, cuts and bruises. Township Committeeman Cummings was bruised and shocked. From their hospital beds they told friends they habitually met on the county road each Sunday morning.

"Jack For Jacks"
WILLISTON, N. D., May 17.—(P)—North Dakota jackrabbits may stock private hunting grounds in the east!

Bertrand H. Small of Boston wrote the local postmaster after reading of Williston rabbit drives whereby farmers rid their friends of pests and add to their income by sale of pelts.

Small suggested the bunnies be trapped alive and sold to private clubs for hunting purposes. Postmaster George Harvey replied he would investigate such possibilities of another source for "Jack for Jacks."

NORWAY MINISTER LEARNS DIPLOMACY

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 17.—Hardly five minutes after she had been sworn in, Saturday, as minister to Norway, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, New York and Washington society woman, received her first lesson in practical diplomacy.

She learned that an initial rule for diplomats is to be non-committal. Mrs. Harriman inadvertently disclosed to newsmen that the department is discussing with the Norwegian government the negotiation of a reciprocal trade treaty.

Mrs. Harriman took the oath of office at the state department at noon. Immediately afterward she received newspapermen.

Michael J. McDermott, the department's press contact man, stood at her side.

One of the interviewers asked if she expected to negotiate a trade agreement with Norway.

"Oh, that's already being done," she said.

McDermott cleared his throat nervously.

"There's been no official announcement about that yet, Madam Minister," he reminded her diplomatically.

"Oh, but I thought everybody knew that," the envoy said.

"We have only been exploring the matter thus far," McDermott explained. "It is not quite correct to say that the negotiations are in progress."

"Oh," said Mrs. Harriman, "I see."

AROUSED IN CLOSING CATHOLIC SEMINARY

BERLIN, May 17.—The closing of a Catholic boys seminary in Heiligenstadt by Nazi police was interrupted in some quarters today as the opening of a police campaign against Catholic educational institutions throughout Germany.

Catholic circles were particularly aroused because the gestapo action coincided with nation-wide publicity given trials of priests and lay brothers on charge of immorality and because of official recognition of Gen. Erich Ludendorff's pagan "German god" movement.

The Heiligenstadt seminary, where secondary school youths prepared for later priesthood training, was shut today because, the police said, of "wretched moral conditions prevailing among youthful inmates."

Whether any of the students or priests had been arrested was not known.

More than 1,000 lay brothers and "numerous" priests throughout the Reich are on trial or awaiting trial on charge of improper conduct, official German figures disclosed. There have been 53 per cent convictions.

Recognition of General Ludendorff's movement, while it was not taken to indicate that the government is going definitely neo-pagan, was regarded as an effort to win the general over to active support of the government.

Official encouragement, nevertheless, of a so-called "German Catholic" (away from Rome) movement, coinciding with the trials of priests and lay brothers, was viewed apprehensively by some Catholics as an effort to drive them into some form of state church.

W. H. Crisman, who for many years was editor of the Green Ridge Local News, and who with his wife and children moved to Colorado 20 years ago, arrived the past week with Mrs. Crisman, are enjoying visiting with friends and recalling happy events of 20 years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Crisman are living in Pueblo, Colo., where Mr. Crisman says for himself, "I am editor of a little paper in a big town, and may end my days in that pursuit."

Mr. and Mrs. Crisman have a host of friends here who are glad to welcome them back.

Miss Cora Darr who spent the greater part of her life in Green Ridge, but who for the past eight years has been living in Alameda, Calif., came Friday for a visit to her former home and friends. She was accompanied to Missouri by her nephew, Otto Weeden and daughter, also of Alameda, who will visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Weeden of Sedalia.

One of the most beautiful Mother's Day affairs was the "tea" given by the Home Builders class Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Baslee, with Mrs. Albert Upton and Chas. Ward, Jr., assisting hostesses.

Mrs. Louis Paige led the class devotional. Mrs. Wilford Acker gave the prayer and Mrs. Guy Richardson read Edgar Guest's poem, "Mother."

Mrs. Carl Johnson gave an interesting review of Lloyd C. Douglas' book, "White Banners." Mrs. Allan Kendrick presented to Mrs. T. J. Anderson, the oldest mother present, and to Mrs. Louis Paige, the youngest mother, each a beautiful potted geranium.

Mrs. Anderson gave by request the reading "Whistling in Heaven." Refreshments of angel food cake and aromatic tea were served to the following: Mesdames George Anderson, Cecil Osbourn, Louis Paige, Elvis Anderson, Paul Raines, Guy Ridenour, Glen Heck, Bruce McCampbell, Wilford Acker, Allan Kendrick, Carl Johnson; Miss Glinda McCampbell, Rev. and Mrs. D. A. Moore, Mrs. L. B. Perdue, Mrs. R. B. Staats, Mrs. T. J. Anderson, Mrs. J. A. Monroe, Mrs. J. A. Calvert, Mrs. C. E. Warren, Mrs. Arnold George, Mrs. J. B. Myers, Mrs. F. W. Smithpeter, Mrs. Chas. H. Brown, Mrs. Arthur Ward, Mrs. Lyle Brown, Misses Joan Ream, Emma George and Maybelle Close.

BARQUET AT TIPTON

The festivities of the Tipton high school commencement period began on Thursday evening with the Junior-Senior banquet, which was held at the school building.

Miss Lucy Carpenter, sponsor of the Junior class, had spared no pains, as the beauty of the completed rooms showed. An old-fashioned garden scene was formed with lattice fences and archways. Cut flowers were used in profusion and against a background of spirea were hung Chinese lanterns.

Seated with the twenty-five Juniors were their guests, the fifteen Seniors: Ray Sterling Pedego, Edward L. Roth, Arthur Pedego, Estel Kammerich, Mark M. Parman, James W. Kline, Ben W. Finley, Wilbur R. Newkirk, James Aquin Simpson, William Ralph Embry, James N. Groves, Margaret L. Homfeldt, Sylvia M. Groves, Forrest Ellen Pulley, John W. Albin, and faculty members of both high school and grades, and Mesdames Repp and Billingsley. The charming and colorful gowns of the ladies added their note of attractiveness.

The program was as follows: Greeting: "Our Garden"—Norman Imhoff.

Response: "A Garland of Roses"—Ben Finley.

Piano solo—Mr. White.

Reading: "Exit The Big Bad Wolf"—Eileen Thomas.

Talk—Superintendent C. A. Repp.

Parents of Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hula, 507 East Fifth street, are parents of a daughter, born at the Bothwell hospital Sunday, May 16.

Maytime is Seed-Time for Play-Time

HOWEVER softly May zephyrs blow, they awaken in all of us the fond yearnings for Summer and vacation.

Like seeds, these stir in the depths of the mind and twine pleasant tendrils about our thought. Visions intrude upon the daily task . . . of gossamer mists lifting at dawn from a campsite on the Lake of the Ozarks . . . of clean, tang-laden sunshine flooding a salty seaport in Brittany or Nova Scotia . . . of squat Mexican missions . . . the Rhineland . . . Bermuda . . . our own Northwest . . . or a pretty little cottage by the sea.

Whichever it's to be, half the fun lies in planning. And there, the newspaper helps. Travel columns are full of the very information you're after. Daily advertising is a reliable guide in buying cruising luggage . . . resort clothes . . . sporting equipment . . . sun lotion . . . new tires for the car . . . all the other accoutrements of one of the happiest times of the year. Advertisements can help to make vacation dreams come true!
